Hey Sonja,

I tried to respond, but my computer froze, so you may be getting this twice (or not at all with the way our computers work).

Anyway, we like apple pie. I spoke with mom this morning and she told me you were asking a bunch of pie questions. John doesn't think he likes cherry, and I know I don't. We're both apple-preferenced pie eaters. The lattice top normally holds up better to a la mode, so I think that's what I prefer. Crumb-y top is fine too though.

I'm desperate to see more wedding photos. John's cellmate (aka cubemate) gave us about a dozen, but that's all I have. If you remember yours that would be awesome.

The trip was great. John was sick for the first few days, so we couldn't drive as much each day (he's not a good passenger...if he's not asleep, he wants to drive). We decided early on to skip Glacier, it would just take too long to get there. On the 3rd night (I think) I decided we'd stay in a hotel to get a good shower and good night's sleep (luckily it was quiet). It really helped John feel better. I'm going to load a bunch of photos onto a website at some point...lots of people want to see them. I'll let you know when they're up. I can bring them to mom and dad's too.

Amy

Hi Amy-

Just curious as to what type of pie you and John prefer? Mom thought it was apple, and that you preferred pie over crisp, but I wanted to make sure. Also, if you like pie better, do you prefer regular pie (lattice top) or Dutch apple pie (crumb-y top)?

p.s. I will try really, REALLY hard not to forget the pics from your wedding.

p.p.s. hope your travel across the country went well and that John wasn't sick to whole time
